Filmmaker

Professor Marjorie Silver and Doug Block

Have an idea for a movie, a documentary, but don't know how to take it to the next level? The perfect gift for you or someone you care about. Internationally acclaimed, award-winning documentarian, Doug Block (51 Birch Street, The Kids Grow Up), helped enable first-time filmmaker, Jon Foy, to win the 2011 Sundance Film Festival Prize for best director of a documentary (Resurrect Dead: The Mystery of the Toynbee Tiles)! Doug has generously donated a one hour consultation [1] with you or the person of your choice to advise the would-be filmmaker on any aspect of producing and distributing a film. How are we so lucky to have this donation? It likely has something to do with Doug being the spouse of our own Professor Marjorie Silver! Includes a copy of Doug's latest, critically praised personal documentary, "The Kids Grow Up."
